

Neela Mookerjee
GKE USA, Education Research Associate
nm@gke.com

Neela Mookerjee is an Education Research Associate at Global Knowledge Exchange. She has presented on technology-assisted learning at national and regional venues. She has entrepreneurial experience in both Internet-based and brick-and-mortar business enterprises. Neela has published nationally and internationally.

Neela is a recent graduate of Stanford University in Palo Alto, California. She holds a Bachelor's degree in Economics and Communication. Neela was a Director at Stanford Student Enterprises, a student-run organization dedicated to developing viable businesses to serve the Stanford community. Her responsibilities included managing a fully-operational retail store as well as its online storefront. Neela also assisted graduate-level research in the Economics department and provided peer guidance in the Communication department.

Her presentation experiences include speaking at the U.S. Secretary of Education's Conference on Technology, the National Education Association Museum in Washington D.C., SchoolTech Expo, to IBM, Dell Corporation, and NJAET. She testified as an expert witness before the Congressional Commission on Web-Based Education in Washington, D.C. in 2000 and was filmed for a campaign video utilized for Vice President Al Gore's 2004 Presidential campaign.

Neela has published several articles for PBS Online and is the national winner of School City's Essay Competition. She provided the Metiri Research Group with a solicited-statement on 21st century learning, and her multimedia pieces are on permanent display at the NEA museum in Washington D.C. Additionally, Neela's creative works have been featured in the award-winning, online magazine Electric Soup and in presentation materials for the Singapore Ministry of Education.

Neela is a former student Directing Editor of Vibrations, a thematic multimedia magazine. She also held the position of Directing Editor of Poetry for Electric Soup, an online literary magazine. Additionally, Neela was a member of the American Technology Honor Society where she achieved that society's most prestigious and highest rank of Scholar. She served as Secretary on the ATHS executive board. She also was a member of the French Honor Society and the National Honor Society at Hunterdon Central High School.